

Daniel Hodin Provides Commentary for Law360 Article on Changing Real Estate Laws

Daniel Hodin provides commentary addressing how the realm of real estate law changes over the last 30 years has affected real estate practices for Law360 article, “RE Law Has Become Much More Than Deals And Dirt,” by Kaitlin Ugolik (April 10, 2014).

“On a day-to-day basis, this means a great deal more due diligence for attorneys, largely because banks need a significant amount of environmental information about a property before giving a loan, according to Daniel Hodin of Paley Rothman, a Maryland-based law firm. ‘I find as an attorney now, as opposed to 20 years ago, I’m much more involved in these details,’ Hodin said.”

The full article, “RE Law Has Become Much More Than Deals And Dirt,” can be found at Law360.com (subscription required/free trial available).